Dance/Movement Curriculum- I am a huge proponent of Orff Schulwerk and integrating movement and play into music lessons.

At-Risk Teaching Abilities- As a public school teacher, I've had the privilege of working with students of all abilities and backgrounds. I am adaptable and always ready to adjust the lesson to fit the needs of the student.

A note from your teacher- Teaching is my passion, and I find immense joy in watching students discover their inner motivation and grow in their musical abilities. I love getting to know each student—their backgrounds, interests, goals, and aspirations. Whether you're just starting to explore music or aiming to make music your life, I'm here to guide you and cheer you on.

About the teacher- Jenna's musical journey began at the age of 4, taking piano lessons from her mother, which laid the foundation for her lifelong passion for music. With a bachelor's and master's degree in music education, and over 8 years of experience teaching music in the classroom and private studio, Jenna brings extensive knowledge and expertise to her students. She is certified in Orff Schulwerk and has made contributions to the music education community as an author for the Orff publication, "Reverberations: Teachers Teaching Teachers", and as a presenter for Carl Orff Vietnam. Outside of the classroom, Jenna's love for music continues as she enjoys playing piano for community events, church services, and accompanying her students and local choirs. Jenna recently moved to Nashville, where her husband is pursuing a career in the music industry. She is teaching elementary music at Westmeade Elementary, where she is passionate about helping students discover the joy and fulfillment that music brings.
